

In this activity I want to work on:

Who, you, yours, me, mine, his and hers.

I will add Bella's face pic to the first page and Kelvin's face pic on the second, laminate and cut all 8 segments. As an idea, you can also add other family pictures - Grandma, Grandpa, Etc.

I will then ask them questions like - Who has the dog? Who has the dinosaurs? It's her ring / It's his turtle. - things like that.

There are many toys out there to work on pronouns (and I have some of them) but I've noticed that when its more relatable, they are more inclined participate in an activity for a longer period of time.
